

Communication Studies Display Supplies

Raphaella Ann Ianiello, Chabot College

The Chabot College Communication Studies Department would like to thank the Chabot-Las Positas Association of Retired Employees for awarding our department with a grant for flip chart paper. Communication students and instructors use flip charts in the classroom and in the Comm Lab in many ways.

Ideal for brainstorming and organizing (cluster maps), as well as presenting visual aids, flip charts help to build teams, convey information, and engage audiences. They are especially helpful for visual learners and ESL students. In addition, businesses still use flip charts in meetings and training sessions, so students learn relevant skills before facing a corporate audience.

Thank you, CARE. The Communication Department sincerely appreciates receiving supplies to enhance learning and prepare students for a successful future.
